VOL. I.—THE BASTILLE.

BOOK FIRST.

CHAPTER I.

LOUIS THE WELL-BELOVED.

PRESIDENT HENAULT, remarking on royal Surnames of Honour how difficult it often is to ascertain not only why, but even when, they were conferred, takes occasion in his sleek official way, to make a philosophical reflection. 'The Surname of Bien-aine' (Well-beloved), says he, 'which Louis XV. bears, will not leave 'posterity in the same doubt. This Prince, in the year 1744, 'while hastening from one end of his kingdom to the other, and 'suspending his conquests in Flanders that he might fly to the 'assistance of Alsace, was arrested at Metz by a malady which 'threatened to cut short his days. At the news of this, Paris, all 'in terror, seemed a city taken by storm: the churches resounded with supplications and groans; the prayers of priests and people were every moment interrupted by the series and it was 'from an interest so dear and tender that the same of Bien-aine fashioned itself, with higher still that all, the rest which 'this great Prince has earned.'*

So stands it written; in lasting memorial of that year 1744. Thirty other years have come and gone; and this great Prince again lies sick; but in how altered circumstances now! Churches resound that with excessive groanings; Paris is storcally salids?
